

The RM-10521 petition currently before the Commission has several obvious problems. Firstly, the petitioner states no relevant reason for the request, except "...promote international goodwill". Goodwill and public relations matters relating to other countries is probably not correctly directed to the FCC.

Secondly, the petition asks for carte blanche unlicensed operation by anyone within the center of a licensed-only amateur allocation, right on the designated National Calling Frequency. This simply ignores the rights and needs of licensed amateurs already lawfully licensed for operation within this segment.

Thirdly, unlicensed FRS use of amateur frequencies within the 420-450Mhz band would cause 'a CB-like circus' of interference from unlicensed operators, opening the door to 'anytime' communications from any location within the United States, surely disrupting amateur services, including those relating to public service, emergency, and licensed assistance to government and local agencies.

Mr. Trahos also apparently wishes to usurp the authority of the FCC in it's ability to enforce Part 15 regulations - obviously ridiculous.

It is my opinion, and that of thousands of licensed amateurs in the U.S., that the FCC continue to execute their assigned duties, and protect allocated services from interference from any entity, including those of "goodwill visitors". Mr. Trahos' petition should be immediately dismissed on the basis of it's lack of consideration and unlawfulness under present regulations.

Thank you,

Pat Martini - KI3P.
